NOTE

THE following Catalogue is designed to bring into an orderly group the authors for whom Houghton, Mifflin & Company act as publishers, and such of their writings as are published by that house. The brief biographical sketches have been prepared with great care, and are intended to supply that condensed information which a reasonable curiosity as to the personality of authors demands. The order of the authors is alphabetical; the order of the books under each author is in the main chronological, the latest publication being placed first, and the earliest last; but in a few instances, especially where a series of volumes is involved, this rule has been broken; where two dates are given, it will be understood that the later stands for a revision or reissue. The books named are in cloth binding, except where otherwise designated, as in paper-bound series; but in almost all cases, in all in fact of what are known as standard books, the publications may be had in various styles of extra binding.

It has been thought serviceable to set forth many of the publications in classified form. A special feature of the issues of this house is the grouping of books not upon a merely mechanical basis, but with reference to encyclopædic and continuous methods. The several Libraries and Series thus will be found in alphabetical order at the close of the Catalogue, as well as the groups of anthologies, professional books, and periodicals. A brief sketch of the history and organization of the house precedes the work. The publishers take this occasion to thank the authors, whose agents they are, for the courtesy with which they have supplied the information desired. It did not appear practicable to add the portraits of authors, — these will be found in large number in the Portrait Catalogue, — but in view of the long-continued and exclusive relations held by the house with the six great American authors who are everywhere recognized as the men of the classic period, a group of these is given as a frontispiece.

A Sketch of the Firm

I

THE founder of the publishing house of Houghton, Mifflin and Company was Henry Oscar Houghton, and the beginnings of the business are to be found in his personal ventures long before the firm took its present style. Mr. Houghton was born in the little village of Sutton, Vermont, April 30, 1823. At the age of thirteen he became an apprentice in the office of the Burlington Free Press, and in the mechanical training there received he laid in part the foundation of his business success. A more important foundation was in the intellectual training upon which he afterward entered. An elder brother was at the time a student in the University of Vermont, and listening to his advice, the boy determined to acquire a collegiate education. At the age of nineteen he entered the same university with twelve and a half cents in his pocket, but with a substantial preparation and with a resource in his trade as a printer to which he turned from time to time as a means of support.

Mr. Houghton's first purpose, like that of many college graduates of his day, was to take up teaching until he could decide upon his permanent vocation ; but failing to find a favorable opportunity, he took up the work of a reporter on the Boston Traveller. It was while he was engaged on the newspaper that the publication of a scholarly work by one of the publishing houses in Boston demanded a proof-reader trained in the classics, and the task came to Mr. Houghton. The renewal of his old art opened the way, and though at first reluctant, since in the eyes of most in those days a college education seemed thrown away on a printer, he resolved to turn to printing as his vocation, and in January, 1849, he joined Mr. Bolles, then of the firm of Freeman and Bolles, in establishing a printing office under the style of Bolles and Houghton. Mr. Freeman retained for a while his interest in the business, and until his death, at an advanced age, was wont to visit and congratulate the successful man who earlier had been his associate.

The office was at first established on Remington Street in Cambridge, and the most important connection was that made with Messrs. Little, Brown and Company of Boston, then as now an eminent publishing house, especially of law books. The moving spirit at that date was Mr. James Brown, a warm friend of the elder John Murray, from whom he named a son, who has succeeded him in business. The firm gave the young printer substantial encouragement, and Mr. Houghton, who was now by himself, became the tenant of Mr. Charles C. Little in a brick, domestic looking building on the banks of the Charles River. The building had formerly been used by the city of Cambridge as a house for the town poor, and stood almost in the open country. Mr. Houghton and Mr. Brown were desirous of giving the new press a significant name, and tried various experiments till Mr. Brown said one day: "This press stands by the side of the Charles River; why not call it the Riverside Press?" and this most natural name was then given it, so that now the term Riverside has come to cover a thickly populated district and to be applied to various neighboring industries.

The nature of Mr. Brown's business led to somewhat of a specialization of Mr. Houghton's industry, and he gave great attention to the manufacture of law books. He had, moreover, as an intimate associate at the time, and one who was for many years a close adviser, his life-long friend the late Hon. Edmund H. Bennett, an eminent writer of law books. But the firm of Little, Brown and Company was also largely interested in works of standard literature, and was at this time carrying forward the series of British Poets, re-edited on this side of the water by Lowell, Child, and Norton, and Mr. Houghton was soon studying the problems of book-making in general literature and bringing to bear his double training as an artisan and a student. He extended his connection with publishing houses, especially allying himself with Messrs. Ticknor and Fields, then coming to the front as the publishers of the leading American authors. In a short time he had won a reputation for making books which preserved the traditions of the great printers, and "Printed at the Riverside Press" became a trademark of value. Some of the books which Mr. Houghton made at that time are now treasured as singularly beautiful specimens of typography.

As his printing business extended, Mr. Houghton gradually found himself acquiring an interest in the books which he printed, and he saw also the necessity of adding facilities for binding. He went to England in 1864, and induced skilled workmen to come to Riverside and engage with him. The enlargement of facilities was made necessary especially by the connection formed with Messrs. G. & C. Merriam and Company, of Springfield, the publishers of Webster's Dictionary, a work which under its revised form of The International Dictionary is still manufactured at Riverside. It became clear also to Mr. Houghton that, with the interest he was acquiring in important books, it was desirable to make a closer connection with a publisher, and in 1864 he formed a partnership with Mr. Melancthon M. Hurd, of New York, formerly of the firm of Sheldon and Company, and the new firm of Hurd and Houghton at once began the publication of law, standard, and miscellaneous books. The publishing proper was to be carried on in New York, while the manufacture of books for this firm as well as for others was to continue at Riverside under the name of H. O. Houghton and Company.

II

Under the impulse given to the business by the formation of the firm of Hurd and Houghton, several important enterprises were undertaken. Among these was the republication of Smith's Bible Dictionary, enlarged and revised by the eminent Biblical scholars Professor Horatio B. Hackett and Dr. Ezra Abbot. The rapid development of a special literature for the young led the firm to establish The Riverside Magazine for Young People, which was published for four years, 1867-1871, under the editorship of Horace E. Scudder. The firm of Hurd and Houghton existed under the same name until 1878, but from time to time changes occurred in its personnel. In 1866 Mr. Albert G. Houghton, an elder brother of the founder of the Press, was admitted, occupying himself mainly with the interests in New York. Not long after the establishment of The Riverside Magazine, Mr. George H. Mifflin, a recent graduate of Harvard College, came into the service of the house, and has had continuous connection with it ever since. In 1872 both he and Mr. Scudder became members of the firm. Mr. Scudder retired after three years, at the expiration of his term of partnership, preferring to give his time more exclusively to literary pursuits, but has remained actively identified with the editorial department of the business. In 1873 the house bought The Atlantic Monthly.

The gravitation of the business to Cambridge, since economy of management was facilitated by shipping direct from the Press and performing there most of the functions of publishing, was accelerated by the purchase of The Atlantic and by an important change which took place in 1878. Failing health led to the retirement from active service of Mr. Albert G. Houghton, and Mr. Hurd also for a similar cause wished to be relieved of business care. At the same time the house formed a consolidation with James R. Osgood and Company, the successors to Ticknor and Fields. Mr. Osgood represented this house in the new firm, and the style became Houghton, Osgood and Company. The immediate effect of this was to transform a well-equipped manufacturing concern with a modest list of publications into a large publishing house having on its catalogue the names of the great leaders of American literature. The premises in Boston formerly occupied by James R. Osgood and Company became the headquarters of the publishing department, and the books now bore the imprint of Boston and New York instead of New York and Cambridge.

The firm as thus constituted continued for two years, when Mr. Osgood retired, and the style of the firm became, in 1880, Houghton, Mifflin and Company; and, shortly after, the publishing headquarters in Boston were removed to 4 Park Street, and in New York to 11 East Seventeenth Street. Various changes in the personnel of the firm have occurred since that time. On the 25th of August, 1895, Mr. H. O. Houghton, Senior, the founder of the house, died, after a lingering illness which had compelled his gradual withdrawal from very active occupation. The style of the firm has, however, continued the same, and is constituted as at the time of his death, his interest still being represented in the business. Mr. Mifflin is senior partner, and has associated with him James Murray Kay, L. H. Valentine, Henry O. Houghton (son of the founder), Oscar R. Houghton and Albert F. Houghton (sons of Mr. Albert G. Houghton). For convenience in accounts, the manufacturing part of the business retains the original appellation of H. O. Houghton and Company, but the interests of both sides of the house are identical.

The most considerable and manifest part of the work done is at Riverside. At that place the books and periodicals are manufactured and stored, and from it are shipped. The mailing department is there also, and the accounts are kept at the Press. The savings department of the business, which is in effect a savings bank for all connected with the firm in any capacity and in any of its establishments, is managed at Riverside; and a Mutual Benefit Association is under the control of those engaged at the Press.

The office at 4 Park Street, Boston, occupies two stories of what was formerly the Quincy mansion. It is the office especially of the publishing department, where are conducted the correspondence with authors and the details of advertising. The educational department, with a large force of clerks, is established in the main rooms; the subscription department, dealing with the sale of libraries of standard books, has its office here; and in the story above are the editorial rooms, furnished with a serviceable library, the office of the cataloguers, and the publishing office of The Atlantic Monthly.

HOUGHTON, MIFFLIN AND COMPANY

In New York the offices of the firm are at 11 East Seventeenth Street, where they occupy a portion of a building which still discloses in the drawing-room, now filled with books and desks, the former use as a family residence. Two of the partners have their office here, and the various interests of the house are served, the department for the sale of standard libraries being especially active. In Chicago the firm has an office at 378-388 Wabash Avenue, where representatives of the house conduct the important business called for by a distributing centre in the great northwest, keeping themselves especially in touch with the significant educational movements of that region. The London agents of the house are Messrs. A. P. Watt and Son at Hastings House, Norfolk Street, Strand, who place the publications of the house in the English and continental market, and aid in making connections with English authors.

III

The collection of books now on the catalogue has been formed by the direct relations of authors with the firm in the first instance, by the reissue under new form of standard works, and by the absorption of other publishing houses. The most important accession, as already stated, grew out of the consolidation with James R. Osgood and Company; but at different times the firm became successors to other houses which went out of business, as J. G. Gregory and Company, of New York, and Crocker and Brewster, and Ticknor and Company, of Boston. The Catalogue of Authors which follows this sketch gives the names of those writers now represented by the publications of the firm, and after the catalogue will be found descriptions of the series of books which form important features in the industry of the house, and of the periodicals, but it will be convenient also to show in a rapid survey the main divisions into which the publications fall.

I. STANDARD BOOKS

Under this head may be included roughly all those works in the English language which have stood the test of time, and are accepted as having a recognized place in literature. Such, for instance, are the books included in the great group of British poets, numbering sixty-eight volumes; Shakespeare, in six volumes, edited by the American scholar Richard Grant White; Tennyson, in a great variety of forms, the scholarly Cambridge, the popular and beautiful illustrated Household, the compact Cabinet, and the dignified Riverside, the last in six volumes, each of the others being in single volumes; the works of De Quincey, as first collected in this country, in twelve volumes ; the most complete edition, whether in England or in America, of the writings of Charles Dickens, in thirty-two volumes, containing the great original designs engraved on steel, a life and collection of letters, and a thorough equipment of dictionary, bibliographical notes and indexes ; a library edition of Thackeray's works, containing matter in no other collected edition, twenty-two volumes in all ; the complete poetic and dramatic works of Robert Browning, in six volumes, as well as a compact edition, with annotations, in a single volume ; the complete poetical works of Shelley, in four volumes, thoroughly equipped with biographical sketch and annotations by George E. Woodberry ; the great edition of Bacon by Spedding, Ellis, and Heath, reproduced here by special arrangement with Mr. Spedding ; the writings of Anna Jameson, including a richly illustrated and revised edition of those relating to art, the matter being brought down to the date of 1895 ; a full set of the Waverley novels, in twenty-five volumes, accompanied by Lockhart's Life in three volumes, and Scott's Letters in two ; and the complete works of Macaulay.

But rich as the list is in British literature of renown, the distinction of the house is in its representation of American literature. The group of portraits which serves as a frontispiece to this catalogue will be recognized at once as standing for the great figures of the classic period of our literature. When we name Hawthorne, Emerson, Longfellow, Whittier, Lowell, Holmes, Mrs. Stowe, and Thoreau, we leave but one or two of the great American authors unmentioned, and the complete writings of all the above writers are issued by Houghton, Mifflin and Company, and by that house alone. By long-continued relations with these authors, and after their death with their families and their representatives, the house has become thoroughly identified with them, and has acknowledged its trust by presenting the works of these writers in a great variety of forms, constantly aiming to meet the demands of the public by beautiful editions, by inexpensive ones, by editions suited for study, and by compilations. The Riverside Editions, so called, are noteworthy for their fullness and their equipment, and the Cambridge Editions of the poets, extending also into the whole domain of English poetry, stand not only for great care in manufacture, but for close attention to that editorial charge which provides an exact text, proper annotation, bibliographical matter, and thorough equipment of indexes.

II. GENERAL LITERATURE

Here, again, the attention of the house has been given especially to the enlargement of American literature. Its organized work has been more particularly in the direction of historical and biographical writing. The great Narrative and Critical History of America, edited by Dr. Justin Winsor, the several series of American Statesmen, American Men of Letters, and American Commonwealths, indicate how important a part this division of literature plays in the plans of the house; and when one adds the series of works by Dr. John Fiske, and the writings of a large number of special students, it is clear how active a part is taken by the house in exploiting American and European history and biography.

Literature also, in its poetic and fictitious form, is one of the great traditions of the house. Upon its catalogue may be found the poetical writings, besides those of the elder American poets, of a long list of younger men and women, with Mr. Aldrich and Mr. Stedman to represent the connecting links between the old and the new.

The strength of the house in popular fiction is shown by the fact that in addition to the names of many British writers of fiction and of such classic American names as Cooper, Hawthorne, Holmes, and Mrs. Stowe, the catalogue contains some eighty authors whose names would at once be recognized as famous and popular; among these, to mention a few very much in the eye of the public, are Mrs. Elizabeth Stuart Phelps Ward, Mr. F. Hopkinson Smith, Miss Sarah Orne Jewett, Mr. Gilbert Parker, Mrs. Kate Douglas Wiggin, Bret Harte, Mrs. Whitney, Joel Chandler Harris, and Miss Mary Johnston.

A further interesting field of literature, largely occupied by Houghton, Mifflin and Company, is that which represents the enthusiasm of lovers of nature. The writings of Thoreau belong among the classics of our literature, but candidates for a like position may readily be found in the works of John Burroughs, which occupy ten volumes, Bradford Torrey, Frank Bolles, Olive Thorne Miller, Rowland E. Robinson, and others. And by a natural association one thinks of that masterly interpreter of the genius of Japan, Lafcadio Hearn.

III. EDUCATIONAL BOOKS

Although certain text-books of value are on the list, the chief attention in this department has been directed toward the introduction into schools of the classic literature already issued by the house in library form. The aim here has been to give the writings of American and English authors, suitable for reading by persons of school age, in an inexpensive, handy form, and provided with helpful apparatus in the way of biographical sketches, maps, portraits, and notes. The Riverside Literature Series and Rolfe's Students' Series cover already more than a hundred and fifty titles, and each school year sees the issue of a number of books in these series.

A special section might also be made of illustrated works, yet the policy of the house is rather to furnish illustrated editions of the writings of the authors for whom they publish than to seek more directly for occasions to make holiday books in which the illustrations should be the supreme feature. One exception to this may be named in the monumental work of designs to accompany The Rubáiyát of Omar Khayyám, by Elihu Vedder. Great attention has been paid to the portraiture of authors, and prints from more than a hundred and fifty engraved plates have been issued, as well as a very large number furnished in special editions of classic works.

Printers in all ages since the invention of their art have been wont to employ distinctive emblematic devices or trade-monograms. Before title-pages were introduced, and in some cases afterward, an inscription or "colophon" appeared on the last page of every book, containing the place or year of its publication, or both, and the name of the press at which it was manufactured. Dual shields appear on the excellent books published by the firm of Faust and Schöffner. An anchor embraced by a dolphin was the emblem of Aldus; the anchor signifying stability or slowness, and the dolphin swiftness, the combination presenting symbolically the Aldine legend, Festina lente, — "Make haste slowly." The father of printing in the English language, William Caxton, decorated his books with a monogram. Iodocus Badius, besides his initials, employed a wood-cut showing the interior of a printing-office, with a hand-press of the period.

In relief upon a handsome window of stained glass, these devices of classic printers greet the visitor as he enters the Park Street office, and upon the same window appears the device adopted by the firm. The old firm of Hurd and Houghton used a monogram designed by Mrs. B. F. Stevens, the daughter of Mr. Whittingham, proprietor of the famous Chiswick Press, London, who designed most of the typographical ornaments which give distinction to her father's printing office. When Mr. Elihu Vedder published with this firm his accompaniment to The Rubáiyát of Omar Khayyám, he furnished for the volume a title-page ornament, representing a boy on the bank of a stream sailing paper boats. On a scroll was "The Riverside Press." The firm asked Mr. Vedder to repeat this device in a form practicable for ordinary title-pages, and he did so, substituting the motto which had long been in use by the head of the firm, Tout bien ou rien, — "Do it well or not at all." This emblem began to be used in 1885, but in the fall of that year Mr. Sidney L. Smith, whose decorative work is found in some of the most notable illustrated books, produced another design upon the same general theme, and the Vedder-Smith sketch is now familiar to the public on the books which Houghton, Mifflin and Company publish, either in its form as at first adopted, or as still later simplified by Mr. Bruce Rogers. Its special significance readily appears when one considers that the printing-house which is identified with this firm took its name from its position on the banks of the Charles. The piper, who is charming his little paper boats that float on the stream and bear lighted candles, sits under the boughs of the tree of knowledge at sunrise, and is conveniently near a printing-press, which is the goal of the boats.

Supplement.

The CATALOGUE OF AUTHORS dated January, 1899, was intended to include the works of the authors named on Houghton, Mifflin & Company's list at that date. The SUPPLEMENT now issued contains the titles of books added since that date, and also includes a few titles omitted from the first edition of the Catalogue.

Lesley, Susan Inches. (7 April, 1823 —)

Born at Northampton, Mass.; daughter of Judge Joseph Lyman and his wife, Anne Jean Robbins. She attended Mr. George B. Emerson's private school in Boston for two years, and then, returning home, received another kind of education from the family practice of reading the best books aloud for several hours every day. Her parents had a wide acquaintance among the distinguished men and women of New England, many of whom were entertained for days or weeks in the house. Miss Lyman was married to Prof. J. Peter Lesley of the University of Pennsylvania in 1849, and she lived forty-five years in Philadelphia. Her present home is in Milton, Mass.

Wise, John Sergeant. (27 December, 1846 —)

Son of Henry A. Wise, late governor of Virginia. Born in Rio Janeiro, while his father was minister to Brazil. He attended the Virginia Military Institute, and was wounded in the battle of Newmarket, in which the cadets of the Institute were engaged. After that he entered the Confederate army, serving under Lee and Johnston and attaining to the rank of lieutenant. At the time of Lee's surrender, when he was only eighteen years old, he was bearing a dispatch to President Davis at Danville, Va. After the war he attended the law school of the University of Virginia, where he was graduated in 1867, entering immediately upon the practice of his profession in Richmond. In 1882 he was elected to Congress from Virginia. Since 1888 he has lived in New York City, practicing law.

An historical study of the early ecclesiastical and political conditions of the commonwealth and the evolution of religious freedom.

Adams, Charles Francis. (18 August, 1807 — 21 November, 1886.)

A son of President John Quincy Adams. He was born in Boston, but spent his childhood and youth in Russia and England during his father's diplomatic life in those countries. He was graduated at Harvard in 1825 and was admitted to the bar, but his long life was marked by great political activity and by important services in public office. The most memorable of these services was that rendered by him as U. S. Minister to England during the war for the Union.

FAMILIAR LETTERS OF JOHN ADAMS, AND HIS WIFE ABIGAIL ADAMS, during the Revolution. With a Memoir of Mrs. Adams. (1875.) Steel Portrait. 12mo, pp. xxxii, 424, $2.00.

At different times the letters of the second president and of his wife were published separately. In this volume their grandson reproduced the most important, giving them in their reciprocal relations, and adding notes and a memoir.

Adams, Charles Francis. (27 May, 1835 —)

A son of Charles Francis Adams, senior. Born in Boston; a graduate of Harvard in 1856; admitted to the bar in 1858, and for a while in the office of

R. H. Dana. He served in the war for the Union, and when mustered out had the brevet rank of brigadier-general of volunteers. He has given much attention to railroad affairs, was at one time a member of the board of railroad commissioners of Massachusetts, and afterward President of the Union Pacific Railway. Since retiring from that office, he has devoted himself largely to historical studies, and is President of the Massachusetts Historical Society.

LOUIS AGASSIZ : HIS LIFE AND CORRESPONDENCE. With Portraits and Illustrations. (1885.) Crown 8vo, pp. xvi, 794. $2.50.

The authoritative Life of Agassiz, tracing his career in Europe and America.

SEASIDE STUDIES IN NATURAL HISTORY. With 185 Figures. (1865.) 8vo, pp. xii, 157, $3.00.

These studies relate to the marine animals in Massachusetts Bay. The text by Mrs. Agassiz is based upon the investigations mainly of Mr. A. Agassiz, who also prepared or supervised the illustrations, taken with very few exceptions from nature.

Agassiz, Louis. (28 May, 1807–14 December, 1873.)

The son of a Swiss pastor, Agassiz very early threw aside all other considerations than those prompted by a love of nature and study. When he was twenty-one he published a description of Brazilian fishes which gave him immediate distinction. For eighteen years he studied, traveled, and taught in Europe. Then, in 1846, he came to the United States, where as lecturer, professor at Harvard, organizer of a great museum, he became the greatest stimulator of scientific study in the country.

A JOURNEY IN BRAZIL. With a Map and twenty Illustrations. (1867.) Crown 8vo, pp. xxii, 540, $2.50.

Written in conjunction with Mrs. Agassiz as a record of a journey made for scientific investigation.

GEOLOGICAL SKETCHES. (1866, 1875.) 2 series. Crown 8vo, pp. vi, 312, 229. Each $1.50.

The first series, besides the famous paper on America and the Old World, treats of continents, mountains, fern forests, and glaciers. The second is devoted mainly to glacial action in various countries.

METHODS OF STUDY IN NATURAL HISTORY. (1863.) Crown 8vo, pp. viii, 319, $1.50.

A popular presentation of the views contained in the author's scientific Essay on Classification.

Albee, John. (3 April, 1833 —)

PROSE IDYLS. (1892.) 16mo, pp. vi, 172, $1.25.

Thirty-five brief prose fancies of the type sometimes known as pastels.

Aldrich, Thomas Bailey. (11 November, 1836 —)

Born at Portsmouth, N. H., a place which figures in several of his productions under the thin veil of Rivermouth. Here was laid the scene of most of his "Story of a Bad Boy," and its historical characteristics are noted in his "An Old Town by the Sea." His early years were divided between this place and New Orleans. He entered a counting-room in New York when a young man, but his literary diversions soon became his occupation. He was connected with one and another journal, but came to Boston in 1865 to take charge of "Every Saturday." Later, he was for nine years editor of "The Atlantic Monthly," and has continued to reside in Boston. His writings consist of Poems, Dramas, Novels, Stories, Essays, and a Translation.

Cooper, James Fenimore. (15 September, 1789-14 September, 1851.)

Born at Burlington, N. J. In his infancy, his father removed to New York State and founded the village of Cooperstown, where the novelist spent most of his life and where he died. In 1803 he entered Yale, but was expelled in his junior year for a breach of discipline. After a voyage before the mast in a merchant vessel, he entered the navy as a midshipman in 1808, but on his marriage to Miss De Lancey of West Chester, N. Y., in 1811, he resigned his commission. His second novel, "The Spy," published in 1821, was so successful that he gave up farming, to which he had devoted himself for some years, and adopted the profession of letters. From 1826 to 1833 he lived abroad, a part of the time as consul at Lyons. Though an ardent patriot, he criticised his fellow countrymen so severely in some of his writings that he was for some time very generally and cordially hated.

Howells, William Dean. (1 March, 1837 —)

Born at Martin's Ferry, Belmont County, O. His father was a printer and newspaper publisher, settled at different times in several towns and cities of Ohio, and the boy's education was received almost entirely in the father's printing-office, where he learned to set type before he was twelve. From a compositor he grew into a correspondent, and when he was about twenty-one years old he became news editor of the "State Journal" of Columbus. At this period he contributed several poems to "The Atlantic Monthly." In 1861 President Lincoln appointed him consul at Venice, and he remained there till 1865. On his return he was for a time an editorial writer on the "New York Tribune" and a salaried contributor to "The Nation." In 1866 he became assistant editor of "The Atlantic," and in 1871 its editor. He resigned in 1881 to devote himself exclusively to original work in literature. He again visited Europe in 1882-83, and on his return lived in Boston for some years and then removed to New York, which has since been his home. He wrote "The Editor's Study" for "Harper's Magazine" from 1886 to 1892, and was for a short period editor of "The Cosmopolitan."

Hutchinson, Thomas. (9 September, 1711 – 3 June, 1780.)

A great-great-grandson of Anne Hutchinson, the heretic. Born in Boston. After his graduation at Harvard in 1727, he spent several years in his father's counting-house. He was made a selectman of Boston in 1737 and a representative in the General Court in the same year. The political career thus begun was continued through successive periods of popularity and unpopularity till, as royal governor of the province, he was superseded by General Gage in 1774. Recent studies of his life and character show him to have been a truly patriotic citizen and conscientious man as well as an able politician, a profound student of finance, and a gentleman of culture and scholarly accomplishments, though he died in exile (at Brompton, near London), either cordially hated or entirely forgotten by most of his fellow-countrymen. The first two volumes of his valuable "History of the Province of Massachusetts Bay" were published in 1764 and 1767 respectively, and the third by his grandson in 1828.

James, Henry. (2 June, 1811 – 18 December, 1882.)

Born in Albany, N. Y., of Scotch-Irish parentage. He was graduated at Union College in 1830. His father's death left him in independent circumstances, and he gave his time to the study of theology, first at Princeton and then abroad. On a second visit to Europe in 1843, he became acquainted with the doctrines of Swedenborg, and he adopted them in the main, though he had no sympathy with the New Church as an ecclesiastical body. He lived many years in New York City and for some time in Newport, but after 1866 made Cambridge his home. He made frequent visits to England, and enjoyed the acquaintance of Carlyle and other thinkers there, as well as of the Transcendentalists in America. He wrote a number of books on theological and metaphysical subjects.

Jameson, Anna. (17 May, 1794—17 March, 1860.)

Born in Dublin, the eldest daughter of an Irish miniature-painter named Murphy. Her father moved his family to England in 1798, and they lived at Whitehaven and Newcastle-on-Tyne successively until 1803, when they removed to London. At the age of sixteen Miss Murphy became a governess. In 1821 she traveled on the Continent with a pupil, making her first visit to Italy, and the "Diary of an Ennuyée" was one of the results. She was married to Robert Jameson in 1825, but the union proved an unhappy one, and they lived apart much of the time, making a final separation in 1838, after spending a year or two together in Toronto, where Mr. Jameson had lived for several years. Mrs. Jameson traveled extensively in Europe, and became an acknowledged authority on sacred art. She was also deeply interested in philanthropic movements. She died at Ealing.

King, Rufus. (March, 1817 — 25 March, 1891.)

A grandson of the distinguished Federalist statesman of the same name, and son of Edward King, a lawyer, who had settled in Chillicothe, O. He was educated at Kenyon College, Gambier, O., and at Harvard, where he took the degree of B. A. in 1839, and that of LL. B. in 1841. Returning home to Cincinnati, he began the practice of his profession. He refused all offers of public office, and remained a private citizen and practicing lawyer during his entire life. He was a public-spirited man, however, and served the community in various ways. He was for five years the dean of the Cincinnati Law School, where he lectured on constitutional law and the law of real property.

King, Thomas Starr. (17 December, 1824 — 4 March, 1864.)

Born in New York City. He received only a desultory education, and at the age of fifteen was compelled by his father's death to assist in the support of the family. In 1845, without having attended a theological school, he began preaching, and in the following year he became pastor of the Universalist church in Charlestown, Mass., which had been his father's charge. He exchanged this pulpit for that of the Hollis Street (Unitarian) Church, Boston, in 1848, and remained there until 1860, when he accepted a call to San Francisco. It was largely through his influence that California was saved to the Union, and he sacrificed his health and strength in the cause. He was a popular lecturer on a variety of subjects. He is also well known as the author of "The White Hills," a sort of poetical guide-book to the White Mountains of New Hampshire, and one of the higher outlying peaks of that region bears his name.

Kirkland, Joseph. (7 January, 1830 – 29 April, 1894.)

Born at Geneva, N. Y., son of Professor William and Caroline Matilda Stansbury Kirkland, both well known as authors in their day. His early life was passed in the backwoods of Michigan, whither the family emigrated in 1835. He had only a common-school education. In 1842 the family removed to New York, and in 1856 Joseph Kirkland took up his residence in Illinois, which continued to be his home thereafter. He engaged in the coal-mining business in Chicago. During the War for the Union he served in the Army of the Potomac, rising to the rank of major. Returning to Chicago, he resumed his business, but failed on account of the great fire. He then entered the internal revenue office, and in his leisure hours read law. He was admitted to the bar in 1880, and he practiced for ten years, but afterwards devoted himself to literary work. He was literary editor of the Chicago "Tribune," 1889–91.

Kropotkin, Peter. (9 December, 1842 —)

Prince Kropotkin's family is of the oldest Russian nobility. He was born at Moscow, but was educated in the school of pages at the court of St. Petersburg. He spent five years in the imperial service in Siberia, where he studied the geological and geographical aspects of the country, and he subsequently attended the University of St. Petersburg. He was appointed secretary of the physical geography section of the Russian Geographical Society. In 1873 he was sentenced, without a trial, to five years' imprisonment in St. Petersburg for disseminating radical ideas of social reform, but he escaped after serving half his term, and took refuge first in Switzerland and afterwards in England and in France. In 1883 he was arrested in France under an obsolete law which proscribed members of the extinct International Workingmen's Association, but was released by order of the President of the Republic after three years' imprisonment. Since then he has lived in England. He has written several books and many review articles on sociological and scientific subjects.

Leland, Charles Godfrey. (15 August, 1824 —)

Born in Philadelphia. He was graduated at Princeton in 1846, and he studied at Heidelberg, Munich, and Paris. He returned to Philadelphia in 1848 and studied law. He was admitted to the bar in 1851, but soon gave up his profession to devote himself to literature and journalism. He edited papers in New York and Philadelphia. On the outbreak of the War for the Union, he advocated a vigorous national policy, and he established in Boston "The Continental Magazine," in which he urged the emancipation of the slaves. He returned to Philadelphia in 1863 and engaged in business and journalism. He lived abroad from 1869 to 1880, chiefly in London. When he returned to Philadelphia, he introduced a system of industrial education into the public schools. He is the author of the "Hans Breitmann Ballads." He now lives in London.

Stowe, Harriet Beecher. (14 June, 1811 – 1 July, 1896.)

Born at Litchfield, Conn.; daughter of Rev. Dr. Lyman Beecher. She was christened Harriet Elizabeth, but she dropped the second name after her marriage. Henry Ward Beecher was a younger brother. The family removed to Boston in 1826, and thence, in 1832, to Cincinnati, where Harriet aided her sister Catherine in educational work. Her first book was a school geography, published in Cincinnati in 1833. She was married, in 1836, to Professor Calvin E. Stowe, of the Lane Theological Seminary, Cincinnati, of which Dr. Beecher was President. In 1850 Professor Stowe accepted a chair at Bowdoin College, and his family removed to Brunswick, Me., where "Uncle Tom's Cabin" was written, and whence, in 1852, they removed to Andover, Mass., Professor Stowe being called to the Theological Seminary there. Mrs. Stowe made three visits to Europe, in 1853, 1856–57, and 1859–60. In 1863 Professor Stowe resigned his professorship and removed his family to Hartford, where a part of Mrs. Stowe's girlhood had been spent, and here she lived until her death, spending her winters in Florida for many years after the war.

Taylor, Bayard. (11 January, 1825 - 19 December, 1878.)

Born at Kennett Square, Chester County, Pa. He received only a country academy education. He entered a printing office in West Chester, Pa., in 1842, but left it in 1844 and traveled in Europe for two years, corresponding for the "New York Tribune" and other papers. On his return to America he started a country newspaper in Pennsylvania, which proved unsuccessful, and then went to New York, whence, in 1849, he went to California as correspondent for the "Tribune." From that time on a great part of his life was spent in traveling — in Europe, Asia, Africa, Iceland. When in America and not lecturing in various parts of the United States, he divided his time between New York City and his farm of Cedarcroft at Kennett Square. In 1862-63 he was secretary of legation and chargé d'affaires for the United States at St. Petersburg, and in 1878, a few months before his death, he became minister to Germany. He died in Berlin. Besides his poems, his translation of Faust, and his books of travel, for which he is most famous, he also wrote several novels.

Thoreau, Henry David. (12 July, 1817-6 May, 1862.)

Born at Concord, Mass., of French extraction on his father's side, his grandfather having emigrated from the island of Jersey to Boston. He was graduated at Harvard in 1837. When a boy he assisted his father in the making of lead pencils, and for many years he worked at this trade at intervals; but surveying became his profession, and in this he always had all the employment that he wanted. His especial business in the world, however, was to live up to his own ideals of life, and to this purpose he bent all his energies. He was always in close companionship with Nature, and in 1845 he began his famous two years' residence in a hut on the shore of Walden Pond. He was an uncompromising opponent of slavery, and, on the arrest of John Brown, he made a memorable address to the citizens of Concord in his defense. Concord remained his home throughout his life.

Whittier, John Greenleaf. (17 December, 1807 - 7 September, 1892.)

Born at East Haverhill, Mass. He was a Friend by birth, and he remained a member of the Society throughout his life. He worked on his father's farm when a boy, and attended the Haverhill Academy. At the age of twenty-one he edited "The Manufacturer" in Boston for a few months, then returned to the farm. He edited the Haverhill "Gazette" for the first six months of 1830, and then went to Hartford, Conn., as editor of the "New England Weekly Review," remaining there till the beginning of 1832, when he returned to Haverhill and resumed his life on the farm. In 1836 he removed to Amesbury, Mass. He had hopes of a political career, but his activity in the anti-slavery cause destroyed his chances in that direction. From 1847 to 1860 he was corresponding editor of the "National Era," an anti-slavery paper published in Washington, to which he contributed poems, reviews, editorials, letters, and sketches. His later years were spent in Amesbury, with relatives in Danvers and Newburyport, Mass., and in summer visits to New Hampshire. He died at the house of a friend at Hampton Falls, N. H.

Wiggin, Kate Douglas. [Mrs. George C. Riggs.]

Born in Philadelphia. Her maiden name was Smith, and Miss Nora Archibald Smith (see p. 122) is her sister. She was taken to Hollis, Me., when a young child, and later, after attending school in Massachusetts, she went to California. There she studied the kindergarten under Emma Marwedel, and, after teaching in Santa Barbara College for a year, she organized in San Francisco the first free kindergarten on the Pacific slope. In 1880 she started a training-school in connection with it. On becoming Mrs. Wiggin, in 1880, she gave up teaching, but she retained a connection with the work for some years. She removed to New York in 1888, and was married to George C. Riggs of that city in 1895; her first husband having died in 1889. Her summers are spent at her old home in Hollis, Me.

Willard, Joseph Augustus. (29 September, 1816—)

Born in Cambridge, Mass.; son of Prof. Sidney Willard of Harvard. He was prepared for college at private schools, but, instead of entering, he shipped for the West Indies in a trading vessel, and followed the sea for eight years (1830-1839). His connection with the courts began in 1846, when he became an assistant to his uncle, Mr. Joseph Willard, clerk of the Court of Common Pleas in Boston. He was admitted to the bar in 1854. In 1865 he succeeded his uncle as clerk of the Superior Court of Massachusetts for Suffolk County, Civil Business, and he still holds that position.

Williams, Alfred Mason. (23 October, 1840-9 March, 1896.)

Born in Taunton, Mass. After a short course at Brown University he enlisted in the Seventh Massachusetts Regiment and served during the War for the Union. His connection with journalism began with letters from the field to various publications. In 1865 he was in Ireland reporting the Fenian trials for the "New York Tribune," at first undergoing a short imprisonment as a Fenian "suspect." Then followed his connection with the Taunton "Gazette" as writer and editorial manager, and two terms in the Massachusetts legislature in 1869 and 1870. In 1872 he established a paper in Neosho, Mo., which stood alone in that section against the encroachment upon Indian lands. His health failing, he returned to New England in 1875 and became a reporter for the Providence "Journal," and from 1884 till 1891 he was its editor.

Wilson, Henry. (16 February, 1812-22 November, 1875.)

Born at Farmington, N. H. His name, originally Jeremiah Jones Colbath, was changed by act of legislature, when he arrived at his majority. His father was very poor, and the boy was apprenticed to a farmer at the age of ten. He worked on the farm till he was twenty-one, getting very little schooling, but reading a great deal. Then he got work at shoemaking in Natick, Mass., and earned enough to continue his education, but the loss of his money compelled him to leave school and return to his trade. Meanwhile he had become interested in the anti-slavery cause and had entered political life. He withdrew from the Whig national convention in 1848 and became a leader in the Free-Soil party. He served in the United States Senate from 1855 until his inauguration as Vice-President of the United States in 1873. He was one of the organizers of the Republican party. During the War for the Union he served as chairman of the Congressional committee on military affairs.

Wilson, Woodrow. (28 December, 1856 —)

Born at Staunton, Va. After his graduation at Princeton in 1879, he studied law at the University of Virginia and practiced at Atlanta, Ga., 1882-83. Then he gave up his profession and studied history and politics at Johns Hopkins University, 1883-85, receiving the degree of Ph. D. there in 1886. He was associate in history at Bryn Mawr, 1885-86, and associate professor of history and political science there, 1886-88. In 1888 he became professor of history and political economy at Wesleyan University, and since 1890 he has been professor of jurisprudence at Princeton. He received the degree of LL. D. from Wake Forest College, N. C., in 1887.

American Statesmen.

EDITED BY JOHN T. MORSE, JR.

The principle adopted by the editor has been to make such a list of men in public life that the aggregate of all their biographies would give, in this personal shape, the history and the picture of the growth and development of the United States, from the beginning of that agitation which led to the Revolution until the completion of that solidarity which we believe has resulted from the civil war and the subsequent reconstruction.

In uniform 16mo volumes, each $1.25.

The whole series naturally shapes itself, in a somewhat crude and rough way to be sure, yet by virtue of substantial lines of division, into a few sub-series or groups.

This series, gradually developed during the past fifteen years, has now been thoroughly revised by editor and authors, and furnished with introductions and thorough indexes, together with an additional volume, containing a General and Topical Index and Full Bibliography. This new issue in 32 volumes is further enriched with one hundred and seventy Portraits, Views, Facsimiles, and other Illustrations in Photogravure, and is sold only by subscription. Full descriptive circulars may be had of the publishers.

British Poets.

About forty-five years ago Messrs. Little, Brown & Co. began the issue of a series of volumes under the above title. They were mainly reprints of English editions, and in some cases the publishers simply bought sheets and bound them with their own title-pages. But all that were reprinted passed under the careful editorial supervision of the late Professor Francis J. Child, who himself contributed the series of English and Scottish Ballads, made the admirable Spenser, and wrote the life of Hood. He called in the aid of other competent editors. Lowell, for example, edited Keats, and wrote the life of Wordsworth, and Mr. Norton wrote the life of Coleridge. The series was afterward sold to Messrs. Ticknor & Fields, and later came upon the list of Houghton, Mifflin & Co., who added a Chaucer, edited by Mr. Arthur Gilman, and a Ben Jonson, edited by Mr. Scudder. They reissued the series in a fewer number of volumes by bringing two and sometimes three of the former volumes into a single one; and the series is now in 68 volumes, crown 8vo, each $1.50; the set, $100.00. Steel portraits of the poets accompany the work. The list is as follows:—

Akenside and Beattie, 1 vol.	Milton and Marvell, 2 vols.
Ballads, English and Scottish, 4 vols.	Montgomery, 2 vols.
Burns, 1 vol.	Moore, 3 vols.
Butler, 1 vol.	Pope and Collins, 2 vols.
Byron, 5 vols.	Prior, 1 vol.
Campbell and Falconer, 1 vol.	Scott, 5 vols.
Chatterton, 1 vol.	Shakespeare and Jonson, 1 vol.
Chaucer, 3 vols.	Shelley, 2 vols.
Churchill, Parnell, and Tickell, 2 vols.	Skelton and Donne, 2 vols
Coleridge and Keats, 2 vols.	Southey, 5 vols.
Cowper, 2 vols.	Spenser, 3 vols.
Dryden, 2 vols.	Swift, 2 vols.
Gay, 1 vol.	Thomson, 1 vol.
Goldsmith and Gray, 1 vol.	Watts and White, 1 vol.
Herbert and Vaughan, 1 vol.	Wordsworth, 3 vols.
Herrick, 1 vol.	Wyatt and Surrey, 1 vol.
Hood, 2 vols.	Young, 1 vol.

The Cambridge Edition of the Poets.

EDITED BY HORACE E. SCUDDER.

In this series each writer is represented by his poetical works in a single octavo volume. For this cause, great attention has been given to securing compactness of form and legibility. The page is double-columned, the type is new and clear, the paper is thin, but strong and opaque, and the binding is both durable and flexible. These points are especially observable in the volume devoted to Browning, where the entire contents of the Riverside edition in six volumes, together with his Essay on Shelley, and considerable editorial apparatus, have been packed into 1033 pp., and yet the book lies agreeably in the hand and is read with pleasure.

A like study of condensation and completeness has been shown in the editing. The editor in each case has followed the most authoritative text, and the proof has been read with scrupulous care. For the most part, a chronological order has been adopted. Introductions have been supplied giving the history of groups of poems, and prefatory notes give in compact form information regarding the origin and first appearance of the separate poems, drawn often from the letters of the poets themselves. Brief explanatory notes, glossaries, and other appliances follow the text; to each volume is prefixed a sufficiently full biographical sketch; and a list of the poems in their chronological order, and indexes of titles and first lines, serve to make the equipment complete.

The best procurable portrait is engraved for frontispiece, and the vignette on the title-page is of the poet's home.

Price, per volume, $2.00, with the exception of Browning, which is $3.00.

The volumes thus far published have appeared in the following order:—

LONGFELLOW. By the Editor. Pp. xxii, 689.

WHITTIER. By the Editor. Pp. xxii, 542.

BROWNING. By the Editor. Pp. xviii, 1033.

HOLMES. By the Editor. Pp. xxii, 352.

LOWELL. By the Editor. Pp. xviii, 492.

BURNS. A reproduction of the text and a large portion of the critical apparatus of the Centenary Edition of Messrs. Henley and Henderson, by arrangement with the Edinburgh publishers. Pp. lxvi, 397.

The Riverside Literature Series.

UNDER THE EDITORSHIP AND SUPERVISION OF HORACE E. SCUDDER.

This series of classic prose and poetical literature in the English tongue has been issued with special reference to the use of public and private schools, academies, and colleges. The numbers are therefore small and convenient in form, of about 100 pp. each, and being in paper covers are published at a low price. Most of the separate numbers can also be had in cloth, and in many instances two or even more numbers of common authorship or character are bound together.

The series started with Evangeline, and a brief description of the initial number will indicate the characteristics of the entire series. A biographical sketch by the editor covers the whole course of the poet's career. In this case the sketch occupies 34 pp., but ordinarily the biographical sketch or other introduction is from four to twelve pages in length. Accompanying this is a brief account of the poet's home life by his daughter, Miss Alice M. Longfellow. An historical introduction follows narrating the facts on which the poem is based, and a critical essay gives the student an account of the origin of Evangeline and some insight into its form and metre, with reference to the literature which has grown up about it. The poem is given in the author's approved text, and is accompanied by foot-notes, which have been prepared with great care. The editor's purpose has been to remove difficulties in the way of an understanding of the poem, but not to afford a substitute for a good dictionary; to quicken an interest in the contents of the poem, but not to comment upon it. In brief, he has aimed to bring the reader close to the poem, not to interpose himself and his observations, or to usurp the function of the teacher. A Pronouncing Vocabulary at the close is for the convenience of teacher and pupil. The number is further enriched by a portrait of Longfellow, views of his birthplace and Cambridge home, and a map of Acadia.

The series, begun with Evangeline in 1883, has grown till it includes a very large part of the prose and poetry of the classic American authors adapted to schoolroom use, plays of Shakespeare, and a number of the standard poems, essays, and narratives of English, Scotch, and Irish writers. It includes also translations from Hans Andersen, the Brothers Grimm, and the classic writers of antiquity. It embraces in its range literature for beginners and literature studied in the university, but always and exclusively it offers literature, and not what has been ingeniously and half-contemptuously termed "reading matter." The purpose has been to give wholes and not fragments; the text has been chosen with the greatest care, and a just mean studied between a meagre and an excessive annotation. Maps, portraits, and other pictures are introduced, not for ornament but for genuine illustration. The editor has never lost out of sight the aim of the series, which is to stimulate an interest in great literature, and to make reading first of all a delight and not a task.

Except in those cases where a special editor is named, the numbers have been prepared by the general editor.

Riverside School Library.

A series of books of permanent value, carefully chosen, thoroughly edited, well illustrated, clearly printed, durably bound in half leather, and sold at low prices. They contain biographical sketches and portraits, maps and glossaries when required, and good notes. All the books are 16mo in size, except when otherwise indicated.

A full list, with detailed contents of the separate volumes, will be sent on application.

ANDERSEN, HANS CHRISTIAN, STORIES BY. With a Portrait. 207 pp., 60 cents, net.

All of Andersen's short stories would require two large volumes, but he was an unequal writer, and the collection here given contains his best known and most attractive stories. The translator has followed carefully the very simple style of Andersen, so that the book can be read by any one who has mastered the second reader, and by some who have mastered the first. Andersen has been called the first child who has contributed to literature, so thoroughly does he understand a child's imagination. The preface gives a pleasant glimpse of the man.

ARABIAN NIGHTS, STORIES FROM THE. With an Introductory Sketch. 184 pp., 60 cents, net.

This collection of about a dozen of the better known stories from this famous book has been made with particular regard to its use by school children. The stories have been rewritten for this edition, and are accompanied by an interesting introductory sketch which tells the history of the "Arabian Nights' Entertainments."

AUTOCRAT OF THE BREAKFAST-TABLE, THE. By Oliver Wendell Holmes. With Biographical Sketch and Portrait. 345 pp., 60 cents, net.

Dr. Holmes lived to see The Autocrat read by the grandchildren of those who read it when it first appeared, and age does not diminish the charms of the juiciest book in American literature. It is like overhearing the witty talk of a brilliant conversationalist to read this book, and the imaginary characters who listen to the Autocrat and occasionally put in a word come to be as well known to readers as many more loquacious persons. A sketch gives the outline of the author's career.

BEING A BOY. By Charles Dudley Warner. With Biographical Sketch, Portrait, and other Illustrations. 255 pp., 60 cents, net.

Mr. Warner tells in a playful way not merely a story of his own boyhood, but the story of country New England life half a century ago.

BIRDS AND BEES, AND OTHER STUDIES IN NATURE. By John Burroughs. With Biographical Sketch, Portrait, and Notes. 284 pp., 60 cents, net.

John Burroughs has taken his place as one of the most delightful writers in America on subjects connected with nature. His observation is close, and his manner is most friendly as he discourses of birds, bees, trees, berries, herbs, landscapes, flowers.

BIRD-WAYS. By Olive Thorne Miller. With Sketch and Portrait of the Author. 241 pp., 60 cents, net.

In fourteen sketches of the American Robin, Wood Thrush, European Song Thrush, Catbird, Redwing Blackbird, Baltimore Oriole, and House Sparrow, Mrs. Miller gives the habits and ways of birds that she has herself watched. The special value of her studies is in their consideration of particular birds.

CAPTAINS OF INDUSTRY. By James Parton. With Biographical Sketch and Portrait. In two series, 403 pp. and 317 pp. Each, 60 cents, net.

In these two volumes are contained ninety-four brief, pungent biographies, most of them relating to men of business who did something, as Mr. Parton says, besides making money. Some of the sketches are of striking characters, of whom no extended biographies have been written, Mr. Parton having obtained his information at first hand. In all, the author gets at the pith of the subject.

CHILD LIFE. Selections from Child Life in Poetry and Child Life in Prose. Edited by John Greenleaf Whittier. With Frontispiece Illustration. 196 pp., 60 cents, net.

Mr. Whittier, aided by Miss Larcom, made two considerable collections of poetry and prose from the writings of well-known authors. The present volume contains the choicest of these selections, with a view to meeting the needs of the younger readers.

CHILDREN'S HOUR, THE, AND OTHER POEMS. By Henry Wadsworth Longfellow. With Biographical Sketch, Notes, Portrait, and Illustrations. 260 pp., 60 cents, net.

In this volume are gathered the most popular of Longfellow's shorter poems, beginning with those most familiar and easy, and proceeding to the more scholarly.

CHRISTMAS CAROL, AND THE CRICKET ON THE HEARTH. By Charles Dickens. With Sketch of the Life of Dickens, and Portrait. 230 pp., 60 cents, net.

These two stories are the most famous and delightful of the celebrated Christmas books by Dickens, which fifty years ago made a new form in English literature.

EMERSON'S (RALPH WALDO) POEMS AND ESSAYS. With copious Notes and Introduction to the Poems, by George H. Browne; Biographical Introduction to the Essays, and Portrait and View of Emerson's Home. 254 pp., 60 cents, net.

This selection from Emerson's poetical writings, and from his great body of essays, gives the young reader an introduction to one of the great modern masters of English. Probably no one American writer has been such an inspiration and guide to thoughtful minds.

ENOCH ARDEN, THE COMING OF ARTHUR, AND OTHER POEMS. By Alfred, Lord Tennyson. With Introductions, Notes, Picture of Lord Tennyson's Aldworth house, and Portrait. 223 pp., 60 cents, net.

Lord Tennyson's story of Enoch Arden has struck deep into the heart of a generation of readers, and the poems which are grouped with it include four of the famous Idylls of the King.

EVANGELINE, HIAWATHA, AND THE COURTSHIP OF MILES STANDISH. With Sketch of the Life and Writings of Henry Wadsworth Longfellow, "Longfellow in Home Life" by Alice M. Longfellow, Explanatory Notes, Portrait, Map, and Illustrations. 396 pp., 60 cents, net.

The three long narrative poems by which the poet is best known are brought together in a single volume, and fully equipped with the needful history of the poet and his works, and such aids as the interested reader desires.

FABLES AND FOLK STORIES. By Horace E. Scudder. Frontispiece Illustration, Millais's "Cinderella." 200 pp., 60 cents, net.

FRANKLIN'S AUTOBIOGRAPHY. With a Sketch of his Life from the point where the Autobiography closes. With three Illustrations, a Map, and a Chronological Table. 260 pp., 50 cents, net.

Benjamin Franklin wrote many letters and scientific treatises, but his Autobiography will outlive them all, for it will continue to be read with delight by all Americans, when his other writings are read only by students of history or science. It is one of the world's great books, in which a great man tells simply and easily the story of his own life. Franklin brought the story down to his fiftieth year. The remainder is told chiefly through his letters. A chronological table gives a survey of the events in his life, and the great historical events occurring in his lifetime. An introductory note gives the history of this famous book.

GERMAN HOUSEHOLD TALES. By Jacob and Wilhelm Grimm. Told again in English. With an Introduction. 252 pp., 60 cents, net.

The German collection is a large one, and much of it is of interest only to students of folk-lore. The forty stories here selected are the best, and most sure to be liked by the young. Some of them are curiously like well-known English household tales. They are all told in a simple, direct English which makes it possible for young people of seven or eight to read them.

GRANDFATHER'S CHAIR, OR TRUE STORIES FROM NEW ENGLAND HISTORY; AND BIOGRAPHICAL STORIES. By Nathaniel Hawthorne. With a Biographical Sketch, Portrait, Notes, and Illustrations. Crown 8vo, 332 pp., 70 cents, net.

This is one of the most delightful books for beginners in history in our literature. The great romancer never was so happy as when he was writing for the young, and the book has been enriched by many pictures and a map. In addition also to Grandfather's Chair, the volume contains half a dozen biographical stories by Hawthorne in the same vein.

GRANDMOTHER'S STORY OF BUNKER HILL BATTLE, AND OTHER VERSE AND PROSE. By Oliver Wendell Holmes. With a Biographical Sketch, Notes, Portrait, and Illustrations. 190 pp., 60 cents, net.

GULLIVER'S TRAVELS. The Voyages to Lilliput and Brobdingnag. By Jonathan Swift. With Introductory Sketch, Notes, Portrait, and two Maps. 193 pp., 50 cents, net.

These famous Voyages give one the entertainment caused by looking first through one end, then through the other, of a spy-glass, and the glass is always turned on men and women, so that we see them first as pygmies, and afterward as giants. The Introductory Sketch gives an account of Dean Swift and his writings, and there are two curiously fanciful maps copied from an early edition.

HOLLAND, BRAVE LITTLE, AND WHAT SHE TAUGHT US. By William Elliot Griffis. With a Map and four Illustrations. 266 pp., 60 cents, net.

A rapid survey of the development of Holland, with special reference to the part which the country has played in the struggle for constitutional liberty, and to the association of Holland with the United States of America.

HOUSE OF THE SEVEN GABLES, THE. By Nathaniel Hawthorne. With Introductory Sketch, Picture of Hawthorne's Birthplace, and Portrait. Crown 8vo, 384 pp., 70 cents, net.

This romance is instinct with a feeling for old Salem, and it embodies some of Hawthorne's most graceful fancies, as in the chapter entitled The Pyncheon Garden. The Introductory Sketch gives an outline of Hawthorne's career.

IVANHOE. By Sir Walter Scott. With a Biographical Sketch and Notes, a Portrait and other Illustrations. Crown 8vo, 529 pp., 70 cents, net.

One of the great Waverley novels. It is hard to say which is the most popular of Scott's novels. Every reader has his favorite, but the fact that Ivanhoe has been selected as a book to be read by students preparing for college shows the estimate in which it is held by teachers.

JAPANESE INTERIOR, A. By Alice Mabel Bacon. With Biographical Sketch. 294 pp., 60 cents, net.

Miss Bacon was for some time an American teacher in a school in Japan to which daughters of the nobility were sent. Her own life and her acquaintance gave her exceptional opportunities for seeing the inside of houses and the private life of the Japanese, and in this volume she gives a clear account of her observation and experience.

LADY OF THE LAKE, THE. By Sir Walter Scott. With a Sketch of Scott's Life, and thirty-three Illustrations. 275 pp., 60 cents, net.

This poem by Scott is almost always the first one to be read when Scott is taken up, and the picturesqueness, movement, and melody of the verse make it one of the last to fade from the memory. The sketch of the poet's life takes special cognizance of the poetic side of his nature, and many of the illustrations are careful studies from the scenes of the poem.

LAST OF THE MOHICANS, THE. By James Fenimore Cooper. With an Introduction by Susan Fenimore Cooper, Biographical Sketch, Notes, Pronouncing Vocabulary, Portrait, and two other Illustrations. Crown 8vo, 471 pp., 70 cents, net.

This is one of the most popular of Cooper's Leather-Stocking Tales. The scene is laid during the French and Indian war, and the story contains those portraiture of Indians and hunters which have fixed in the minds of men the characteristics of these figures. Miss Susan Fenimore Cooper, daughter of the novelist, gives an interesting account of the growth of this story.

LILLIPUT AND BROBDINGNAG, THE VOYAGES TO. See Gulliver's Travels.

MILTON'S MINOR POEMS, AND THREE BOOKS OF PARADISE LOST. With Biographical Sketch, Introductions, Notes, and Portrait. 206 pp., 60 cents, net.

The Introductions and Notes offer aids to a clear interpretation and true enjoyment of the author.

NEW ENGLAND GIRLHOOD, OUTLINED FROM MEMORY, A. By Lucy Larcom. With Introductory Sketch and Portrait. 280 pp., 60 cents, net.

Miss Larcom has here told the story of her early life, when as a country girl she entered the mills at Lowell, Massachusetts, and she has drawn a picture of New England in the middle of the century as she knew it, scarcely to be found in any other book. The narrative is a delightful bit of autobiography, and has a charm both poetic and personal.

PILGRIM'S PROGRESS, THE. By John Bunyan. With an Introduction, Notes, and Portrait. Edited by William Vaughn Moody, A. M., Instructor in English and Rhetoric in the University of Chicago, Chicago, Ill. 218 pp., 60 cents, net.

This is the famous first part of the great classic. The editor has shown clearly how interesting and valuable the book is as an illustration of English life in the Puritan period, and how masterly it is as a piece of English idiomatic prose. Bunyan interprets the homely England of his day as Milton did the English state and the scholar's attitude. It would be a mistake to regard the book as exclusively religious. It would be a mistake also to deny its religious inspiration.

POLLY OLIVER'S PROBLEM. By Kate Douglas Wiggin. With Introductory Sketch, Portrait, and Illustrations. 230 pp., 60 cents, net.

A story for girls, showing how a girl in straitened circumstances bravely worked out the problem of self-support.

RAB AND HIS FRIENDS; AND OTHER DOGS AND MEN. By Dr. John Brown. With an Outline Sketch of Dr. Brown, and a Portrait. 299 pp., 60 cents, net.

The touching story of Rab and his Friends has introduced many readers to the beautiful character of Dr. John Brown, the Edinburgh physician who wrote the tale, and in this volume are gathered a number of Dr. Brown's sketches and tales, including Marjorie Fleming, and several bright narratives of dogs.

ROBINSON CRUSOE. By Daniel Defoe. With an Introductory Sketch and Portrait of the Author, a Map, and Explanatory Notes. 409 pp., 60 cents, net.

The first part of Robinson Crusoe is here given entire, and this is the part which the world knows as Robinson Crusoe. In the Introductory Sketch, the editor, besides giving an account of Defoe's career, shows the reason why this book has been received by readers old and young as a work of genius, when almost the whole of the great mass of Defoe's writing has been forgotten. A map enables one to trace Robinson Crusoe's imaginary voyagings, and to place the island near the disputed boundary of Venezuela.

SHAKESPEARE, TALES FROM. By Charles and Mary Lamb. With an Introductory Sketch and Portraits of the Authors. 324 pp., 60 cents, net.

There is a story behind every great play, and it is only after one has got at the story that one thoroughly understands and enjoys the play. Charles and Mary Lamb were themselves delightful writers, and to read their Tales from Shakespeare is not only to have a capital introduction to the great dramatist's works, but to hear fine stories finely told. This volume contains, besides, an account of the brother and sister, whose life together is one of the most touching tales in English literature.

SHAKESPEARE'S JULIUS CÆSAR AND AS YOU LIKE IT. With Introductions and Notes. 224 pp., 60 cents, net.

The text followed is that of the eminent Shakespearean scholar Richard Grant White, whose notes, always to the point, have also been used and added to.

SILAS MARNER: THE WEAVER OF RAVELOE. By George Eliot. With an Introduction and a Portrait. 251 pp., 60 cents, net.

Silas Marner is one of the most perfect novels on a small scale in the English language, and its charm resides both in its style and its fine development of character. The Introduction treats of the life and career of George Eliot, and the place she occupies in English literature.

SKETCH BOOK, ESSAYS FROM THE. By Washington Irving. With Biographical Sketch and Chronological Table of the Period covered by Irving's Life, Portrait, Picture of Westminster Abbey, Introduction, and Notes. 212 pp., 60 cents, net.

In a nearly equal division, the most interesting American and English sketches from Irving's Sketch Book are grouped in this volume.

SNOW-BOUND, THE TENT ON THE BEACH, AND OTHER POEMS. By John Greenleaf Whittier. With Biographical Sketch, Notes, Portrait, and Illustrations. 270 pp., 60 cents, net.

This volume contains those poems which have made Whittier a great household poet, as well as a few of those stirring lyrics which recall his strong voice for freedom.

STORIES AND POEMS FOR CHILDREN. By Celia Thaxter. With Biographical Sketch and Portrait. 271 pp., 60 cents, net.

Mrs. Thaxter's girlhood in her isolated home on the Isles of Shoals, and her life there on her return in maturity, gave her material which she used with power and beauty in her verse and prose.

STORIES FROM OLD ENGLISH POETRY. By Abby Sage Richardson. 291 pp., 60 cents, net.

A group of stories after the manner of Lamb's Tales from Shakespeare, drawn from Chaucer, Spenser, Shakespeare, and some of the lesser poets, not now generally read; stories of great beauty in themselves, and illuminated by the genius of the poets who used them.

STORY OF A BAD BOY, THE. By Thomas Bailey Aldrich. With Biographical Sketch, Portrait, and many Illustrations. Crown 8vo, 264 pp., 70 cents, net.

A humorous and graphic story of the adventures of a hearty American boy living in an old seaport town. The book has been a great favorite with a generation of boys.

TALES OF A WAYSIDE INN. By Henry Wadsworth Longfellow. With Introduction, Notes, and Illustrations. 274 pp., 60 cents, net.

In the Introduction the reader is told who were the friends of the poet who served as models for the several story-tellers that gathered in Howe's tavern in Sudbury.

TALES OF NEW ENGLAND. By Sarah Orne Jewett. With Portrait and Biographical Sketch of the Author. 280 pp., 60 cents, net.

Eight of the stories which show Miss Jewett as the sympathetic narrator of homely New England country life. The stories are, Miss Tempy's Watchers; The Dulham Ladies; An Only Son; Marsh Rosemary; A White Heron; Law Lane; A Lost Lover; The Courting of Sister Wisby.

TOM BROWN'S SCHOOL DAYS. By Thomas Hughes. With an Introductory Sketch, two Portraits, and six other Illustrations. 390 pp., 60 cents, net.

Tom Brown at Rugby is the popular name by which this book is known. It is perhaps the best-read story of schoolboy life in the English language. Rugby was the English school presided over by Dr. Thomas Arnold, and a portrait of Arnold is given. The Introductory Sketch gives an account of Arnold and Rugby, of Thomas Hughes, the "Old Boy" who wrote the book, and mentions Frederic Denison Maurice, who had a great influence over Hughes. The volume also contains a portrait of Hughes.

TWO YEARS BEFORE THE MAST. By Richard Henry Dana, Jr. With Biographical Sketch and Portrait. Crown 8vo, 480 pp., 70 cents, net.

As a frontispiece to this book, there is a portrait of the author when he took his famous voyage just after leaving college. But great as Dana was as a lawyer, orator, and statesman, he lives chiefly in the memory of men as the narrator of a voyage round Cape Horn to San Francisco before the discovery of gold. The days of such exploits seem gone by, but this book remains as a literary record, and will always be thus remembered.

UNCLE TOM'S CABIN; OR, LIFE AMONG THE LOWLY. By Harriet Beecher Stowe. With Introductory chapter on Mrs. Stowe and her career, Portrait, and picture of Mrs. Stowe's birthplace. Crown 8vo, 518 pp., 70 cents, net.

The most celebrated American book, and one of the world's great books. The Introductory chapter gives a sketch of Mrs. Stowe's life, and some account of a book which has had a wonderful history. It has well been called not a book only, but a great deed.

VICAR OF WAKEFIELD, THE. By Oliver Goldsmith. With Introduction, Notes, Portrait, and Illustrations. 232 pp., 60 cents, net.

So celebrated is this book as a piece of English that German boys, when set to studying the English language, are early given this tale. It is Goldsmith's one story, and has outlived a vast number of novels written in his day.

WAR OF INDEPENDENCE, THE. By John Fiske. With Biographical Sketch, Portrait of the Author, and four Maps. 214 pp., 60 cents, net.

Dr. John Fiske is the most eminent of living American historians. His large histories are read eagerly, as he adds volume to volume, and in time it is hoped that he will cover the whole course of American history. This small book contains in a nutshell the meat of a great book. It is a clear narrative, and, what is quite as important, it gives the why and wherefore of the Revolution, and explains how one event led to another. It contains also suggestions for collateral reading, and a biographical sketch which gives some notion of the author's training as a scholar and author.

WASHINGTON, GEORGE. An Historical Biography. By Horace E. Scudder. With four Illustrations. 253 pp., 60 cents, net.

Within a brief compass Mr. Scudder has attempted to give the narrative of Washington's life, and to show that he was a living, breathing man, and not, as some seem to think him, a marble statue. He calls his book an historical biography because he has tried to show the figure in its relation to the great events of American history in which it was set.

WONDER-BOOK, THE, AND TANGLEWOOD TALES. For Girls and Boys. By Nathaniel Hawthorne. With Biographical Sketch, and Frontispiece by Walter Crane. Crown 8vo, 419 pp., 70 cents, net.

The old Greek myths told over again by the greatest of American romancers.

THE ATLANTIC MONTHLY.

A Magazine of Literature, Science, Art, and Politics.

THE origin of The Atlantic forms the subject of a chapter in American literature which has often been written. The magazine was established, not primarily as a commercial enterprise, but that a group of men and women who had moral earnestness and literary power might have an organ which should stand for the best impulses in American life, and marshal the literary forces of the country. The first editor of the magazine, James Russell Lowell, stamped his own character at once on the periodical. His acute literary conscience and his enthusiasm for great reforms gave assurance that the magazine would show the best literary art and bring to the front the worthiest material for thought and feeling.

The first publishers of the magazine were Messrs. Phillips, Sampson & Co., of Boston; and their literary adviser, the late Francis H. Underwood, was largely concerned in organizing the magazine and getting it on its feet. Some of the incidents connected with the founding have been recorded by Mr John T. Trowbridge, a contributor to the first number, in his article written after Mr. Underwood's death, and published in The Atlantic for January, 1895, under the title The Author of Quabbin. Mr. Lowell was at the time a professor in Harvard College, and he named as an indispensable aid in giving character to the work Dr. Oliver Wendell Holmes, known then as a felicitous poet, an agreeable lecturer, and a brilliant conversationalist.

Dr. Holmes began his Autocrat of the Breakfast-Table in the first number, which was issued in November, 1857, and at once gave the magazine a distinct reputation through the introduction of what was almost a new variety of literary composition. He continued to contribute to the magazine down to the year of his death. The steadfastness of the old contributors to the magazine is remarkable. Of the contributors to the first number two are now (1899) still living — Professor Charles Eliot Norton and Mr. John T. Trowbridge. Mr. Norton wrote in the first number on the Art Exhibition, then attracting great attention in Manchester, England, and he had an article on Rudyard Kipling's poetry in the number for January, 1897, the volumes between these dates containing about fifty papers from his pen, including important Dante studies. Mr. Trowbridge, who had a story in the first number, contributed more than sixty poems, tales, and essays before that in which he gave his pleasant reminiscences of the beginning of the magazine. Perhaps nothing so pointedly indicates the steadfastness of the magazine to its early ideas as the fact that Mr. Lowell invited the great historian Parkman to tell the story of the Capture of Louisbourg, and thirty-three years later Dr. Parkman found it natural to send this study to the editor of The Atlantic of that day.

Dr. Parkman was one of the distinguished company of authors who early made the magazine the vehicle for their writings. In the very first number, besides the writers already named, appeared Emerson with five poems, Mrs. Stowe with a story, Motley with his Florentine Mosaics, William H. Prescott with an historical paper, Longfellow with a poem, — Santa Filomena, — and Lowell himself with two poems and a causerie. Colonel Higginson and Rev. Edward Everett Hale, both frequent contributors ever since, made their appearance in the magazine in its first year.

Four volumes, covering two years and two months, were issued by the house of Phillips, Sampson & Co., when the death successively of Mr. Phillips and Mr. Sampson was followed by a dissolution of this firm, and the magazine passed into the hands of Messrs. Ticknor & Fields. Mr. Lowell continued to conduct it till the spring of 1861, when he resigned the editorship to one of the members of the firm, Mr. James T. Fields, but continued his close connection with the magazine as contributor until his death. The house of Ticknor & Fields was the leading house in the country in the publication of literature proper, especially that of American origin, and under the skillful management of Mr. Fields the magazine drew to itself a large number of the best writers of the day, welcoming also the newcomers. Mr. Aldrich and Mr. Howells early became contributors, and Mr. John Fiske, Mr. Burroughs, and Bret Harte were added about the same time. Of the older writers, the most celebrated, besides those already named, were Hawthorne, Thoreau, Bryant, and among foreign writers Robert Browning and Sainte-Beuve.

In 1866 Mr. Fields associated with himself Mr. William Dean Howells, who had lately returned from Venice, and had already been a contributor; and from this time on till his connection with the magazine was discontinued by his resignation from the editorship, Mr. Howells was a constant writer, his novels, sketches, poems, and criticisms probably exceeding in amount that of any other contributor up to this time. In 1871 Mr. Howells became sole editor, Mr. Fields retiring at that time from the firm. The magazine continued the property of the successive firms of Ticknor & Fields, Fields, Osgood & Co., and James R. Osgood & Co. until the close of 1873, when it passed into the hands of Messrs. H. O. Houghton & Co., of the Riverside Press, Hurd & Houghton of New York, and has continued in the same hands, under changes of firm names, since that date. Mr. Howells continued to edit the magazine, having for a while as assistant Mr. George Parsons Lathrop, until the spring of 1881, when he was succeeded by Mr. Thomas Bailey Aldrich. Mr. Aldrich was followed in the spring of 1890 by Mr. Horace E. Scudder; in the spring of 1896 Mr. Walter H. Page, formerly editor of The Forum, New York, became associate editor, and in the summer of 1898, on the retirement of Mr. Scudder, he became sole editor.

The Atlantic has never changed its form to any considerable extent. The early numbers carried on the cover a vignette of John Winthrop, the first governor of Massachusetts Bay; but upon the outbreak of the war for the Union the American flag was substituted for this portrait, and after the close of the war the contents of the number occupied the same place. In 1898, when the war with Spain broke out, the flag was again raised on the cover, and lowered only when the protocol was signed. From time to time, especially since the magazine came under the care of Mr. H. O. Houghton, improvements have been made in typography, paper, and binding; the display of the contents also has been made more clear, but the size and color of the cover and general air of the magazine have been preserved.

The articles at first were not signed, the publishers did not publicly announce them, and the table of contents accompanying each volume did not contain the names of authors annexed to their several contributions. This last practice was begun in the ninth volume, and at the beginning of the twenty-sixth the present custom was adopted of signing each article with the author's name; the practice continued, however, of withholding signatures from reviews and articles in departments. When the first general index was published in 1877, and especially when the second comprehensive index in 1889 was prepared, pains was taken to record the authors' names of all unsigned articles of every description save one.

In the first number Mr. Lowell introduced a department of a somewhat personal order, called The Round Table, but he probably took alarm at the prospect of having to keep it up with his own writing, and he did not repeat the experiment. In 1872, shortly after coming into office as sole editor, Mr. Howells organized a group of departments, covering literature, science, art, politics, music, and subsequently education; he had the special coöperation of Mr. Thomas Sergeant Perry in French and German Literature, Mr. John Fiske in Science, Mr. William Foster Apthorp in Music, and Mr. Arthur George Sedgwick in Politics. These departments were discontinued in 1877. For a few numbers, also, in 1876 and 1877, the experiment was tried of giving original music accompanying original songs. In 1877 Mr. Howells introduced The Contributors' Club. He had from time to time received sprightly letters from contributors and others, sometimes containing good-humored criticism of the contents of the magazine, and as a frugal editor he disliked to see so much good "copy" wasted; accordingly, he began making use of excerpts from the letters, but the club quickly passed beyond this simple function, and became the vehicle for light table talk on a variety of themes by a number of persons. One article in the club would lead to another, and the shelter afforded by the anonymous nature of the contributions led to much free speech. Perhaps no one writer contributed so many articles which provoked other articles as the late E. R. Sill. The authorship of articles in the club is not disclosed in the otherwise full Atlantic Index. In 1896 another department was added and resorted to irregularly, under the name Men and Letters, designed to give opportunity for brief signed articles on authors and literary topics, but not formal reviews of books.

Reviews of books have formed a special feature from the outset, and a reference to the Index will disclose the fact that besides the editors, a number of the foremost critics in the country have been engaged in this work. In 1880 the reviews of current literature, which formerly had been in a department by themselves, were made regular, though still unsigned articles at the close of each number, the practice being adopted of grouping kindred works, when practicable, in a single article. Of late there have been frequent departures from this practice, and many reviews have been signed, especially when they have been large studies of special subjects or authors. In 1879 Mr. Howells added to the regular reviews a summary of current publications, with rapid comments, under the title of Books of the Month. This department in 1891 was renamed Comment on New Books, and was continued until the spring of 1897, when the great increase in special book journals and the enormous multiplication of literature induced the conductors to abandon the Comment as a small-type department.

The line which stands on the cover of the magazine below the title indicates briefly the scope of The Atlantic and the purpose it has always held. It is above all devoted to literature. Not only is the subject of literature itself constantly considered, but what is more to the point, the magazine contains works of literary art, and it aims at the best literary form in all its articles. The lasting contributions to American literature which had their first appearance in The Atlantic cannot readily be reckoned. In poetry it has had the honor to print for the first time a large number of poems by Emerson, Longfellow, Bryant, Whittier, Lowell, Holmes, Bayard Taylor, Stedman, Aldrich, Howells, T. W. Parsons, Fawcett, Alice Cary, Helen Hunt, to say nothing of younger writers, and it has always given hospitality to new names, making the hospitality of special worth by the care with which it has guarded against the admission of the commonplace. In fiction it has had a series of novels which are among the books that have not been pushed aside by temporary fashion. It includes stories by Hawthorne, Mrs. Stowe, Holmes, Howells, Henry James, Aldrich, Bret Harte, E. E. Hale, A. S. Hardy, Thomas Hardy, Crawford, Charles Egbert Craddock, Mrs. Elizabeth Stuart Phelps Ward, Stockton, Miss Jewett, Gilbert Parker, Mrs. Wiggins, Mrs. Catherwood, Mrs. Deland, Paul Leicester Ford, and F. Hopkinson Smith. One field of literature it has occupied with many delightful articles, that of personal reminiscences. Mrs. Kemble published here her Old Woman's Gossip, Dr. Edward Everett Hale his A New England Boyhood, Dr. George Birkbeck Hill A Talk over Autographs, Mrs. Lathrop Some Memories of Hawthorne, Mr. Fields Our Whispering Gallery, later named Yesterdays with Authors, Simon Newcomb his Reminiscences of an Astronomer, Colonel Higginson his Cheerful Yesterdays, Prince Kropotkin his Autobiography, and Mrs. Julia Ward Howe her Reminiscences.

As a special exponent of American politics and history, The Atlantic has never lost sight either of the foundations of national life or of the great questions of current interest. Before and during the war for the union it had trenchant political papers by Lowell and others, and it published the second series of Lowell's masterly Biglow Papers. Mr. Parton in his biography of Jefferson, Dr. Parkman in his studies in colonial history, and Dr. John Fiske in a great variety of historical papers, afterward gathered into his several books, are a few of the contributors in this field. A quarter of a century after the war, there appeared three illuminating papers summing up the consciousness of the three great sections during that war: Professor Gildersleeve's The Creed of the New South, Professor Shaler's The Border State Men of the Civil War, and General Cox's Why the Men of '61 fought for the Union. The war with Spain and the problems growing out of it have given occasion for important papers by James Bryce, Ira N. Hollis, Richard Olney, Henry Charles Lea, Carl Schurz, David Starr Jordan, and Benjamin Kidd. The biographical side of history has been made especially prominent in recent years, as may be seen from such notable papers as Carl Schurz's Abraham Lincoln, James C. Carter's Mr. Tilden, Professor Palmer's Evangelinus Apostolides Sophocles, Dr. Royce's Frémont, Captain Mahan's series of the Companions of Nelson, John C. Ropes's General Sherman, Dr. Allen's Phillips Brooks, J. N. Denison's General Armstrong, Senator Dawes's Recollections of Stanton, Fiske and Winsor on Parkman.

The series by Mr. Godkin of studies in recent democracy is but one of the many indications that The Atlantic is earnestly desirous of grappling with present problems. The paper by Mr. Woodrow Wilson on President Cleveland, that by Dr. John Fiske on Arbitration, and that by President Eliot on Five American Contributions to Civilization, to mention a few only of the later papers, intimate the policy of the magazine to treat politics in a large way. By the general term "politics" it understands all the functions of the State, and, especially of recent years, it has given unremitted attention to movements in education. It heralded some of the great reforms by papers from Presidents Eliot, G. Stanley Hall, and others; it has given editorial consideration to the study of English both in school and college; in the winter of 1896 it set on foot a broad inquiry into the public school system throughout the United States; and it brings before the public the important philosophical observations of Professors Münsterberg and William James. It has lately occupied itself with some of the important questions springing out of the improvement of town and country life in parks and reservations, and it seeks both to record progress and to point the way. In connection with this general subject, it has published some remarkable papers by John Muir.

In brief, The Atlantic aims at representing the interests of cultivated Americans who are thoroughly concerned in the development of the higher life of the nation, and wish to see great subjects treated in a great way; who also ask in their magazine a satisfaction of their demand for pure literature. The Atlantic therefore preserves a balance between that literature which is charged with the task of informing and stimulating, and that which appeals to the imagination and a refined taste. It is neither a miscellany nor an organ, but combines the prominent features of the political, historical, and sociological review, the critical and scholarly journal, and the vehicle for creative literature.

THE ATLANTIC INDEX (Vols. I.-LXII., 1857-1888). 8vo, $3.00.

THE ATLANTIC MONTHLY FOR 1901.

An important feature of The Atlantic during 1901 will be fiction.

Miss Sarah Orne Jewett's The Tory Lover takes for its theme the fortunes of the exiled Loyalists at the beginning of the American Revolution. That portion of the present State of Maine which has become Miss Jewett's country as completely as Mr. Hardy has made Wessex his own domain is rich in provincial history. The fortunes of the exiled Loyalists carry the scene of Miss Jewett's stirring romance to England and France, but her portraits of Benjamin Franklin and John Paul Jones and other Revolutionary heroes, and her narration of American bravery on the high seas, will delight the lover of his country, as well as the thousands of admirers of Miss Jewett's steadily maturing and beautifully veracious art. The Tory Lover will be a serial feature of the magazine during the greater portion of 1901.

Miss Mary Johnston, whose Atlantic serial, "To Have and To Hold," achieved such instant and phenomenal success, has written for The Atlantic another historical romance, with the alluring title of Audrey. Its scene is laid in Virginia, Miss Johnston's chosen field, and the time is the early eighteenth century. In this new work of one of the most promising of American writers, Miss Johnston is believed to have made a distinct artistic advance, even over her remarkable tour de force of "To Have and To Hold." Audrey will appear as a serial in The Atlantic during the summer and autumn of 1901.

In Penelope's Irish Experiences, by Kate Douglas Wiggin, The Atlantic readers will have the final group of the Penelope papers. This charming heroine has always insisted upon viewing the scenery and customs and people of Great Britain through her own honest and sparkling American eyes, and her adventures on Irish turf are as revelatory of the American temperament as they are true to the soil of Ireland.

The list of Atlantic Essayists has been a notable one from the very founding of the magazine. Among the writers who have promised to contribute to its pages during 1901 are —

Le Baron R. Briggs,
John Burroughs,
John J. Chapman,
Winthrop M. Daniels,
Martha Barker Dunn,
John Fiske,
Lewis E. Gates,

The Reconstruction Period.

The most important group of papers which The Atlantic will offer to its readers is a series of studies of the Reconstruction Period. The various authors represent both the South and the North, and many shades of political opinion. Some of them were prominent actors in the Reconstruction drama; others are known throughout the country for their special studies upon this period of American history; but all of them, however naturally inclined to the Northern or the Southern point of view, have written with candor and good temper. It is true that one of them confesses that "Reconstruction is still revolutionary matter. Those who delve in it find it like a banked fire; still hot and fiery within, for all it has lain under the ashes a whole generation; and a thing to take fire from." But without some such examination of the conditions under which the Southern States were readmitted to the Union, it is impossible to form a clear opinion of the most significant of our internal problems of the coming decade, namely, the movement for the disfranchisement of the Southern negro.

The Reconstruction of the Southern States. By Woodrow Wilson, author of "The State," "Congressional Government," "Division and Reunion," etc. He is a Virginian by birth, and is now Professor of Jurisprudence and Politics at Princeton University.

The Conditions of the Reconstruction Problem. By Hilary A. Herbert, author of "The Solid South." He is a native of South Carolina, served in the Confederate army, was a member of Congress, 1877-1893, and was Secretary of the Navy, 1893-1897.

The Freedmen's Bureau. By W. E. B. Du Bois, author of "The Suppression of the Slave Trade," "The Philadelphia Negro," etc. He was born in Massachusetts, educated at Harvard, and is Professor of Economics and History at Atlanta University.

South Carolina during Reconstruction. By Daniel H. Chamberlain, who was born in Massachusetts, and educated at Yale. He served in the Union army, and settled in South Carolina in 1866. He was Attorney-General of South Carolina, 1868-1872, and Governor, 1874-1876.

The Ku Klux Movement. By William G. Brown, author of "Andrew Jackson" in the Riverside Biographical Series, "The Orator of Secession," and other studies in Southern political history. He was born in Alabama, and graduated at Harvard.

The Southern People during Reconstruction. By Thomas Nelson Page, author of "In Old Virginia," "The Old South," "Red Rock, a Chronicle of Reconstruction," and other works. He was born in Virginia, and educated at Washington and Lee, and the University of Virginia.

Washington during the Reconstruction Period. By Samuel W. McCall, author of the "Life of Thaddeus Stevens," in the American Statesmen series. He was born in Pennsylvania, is a graduate of Dartmouth, and is a member of Congress from Massachusetts.

The Undoing of Reconstruction. By William A. Dunning, editor of The Political Science Quarterly, and author of "Essays on the Civil War and the Reconstruction." He is a native of New Jersey, and was educated at Columbia, where he is now Professor of History.
